

Mary Lee Jensvold

Mary Lee Jensvold is a Senior Lecturer in the Primate Behavior Program at Central Washington University, the Primate Communication Scientist and Associate Director at Fauna Foundation in Carignan, Quebec, and past director of the Chimpanzee & Human Communication Institute. She has worked with signing chimpanzees since 1986 studying chimpanzee communication and intelligence. She holds a M.S. and Ph.D. in Experimental Psychology. She specializes in ethological studies of apes, animal intelligence, communication, language, culture, and advocacy in captive care. At this conference she shares with us her approach to communicating with nonhumans.