

Michael Oman-Reagan

Michael P. Oman-Reagan is an anthropologist and doctoral candidate at Memorial University and an affiliated researcher at the University of Victoria, Canada. His research examines exploration beyond our solar system through SETI, interstellar spacecraft, and astronomy. Working with interdisciplinary research communities, he aims to understand how science helps us imagine and build better futures on Earth, in our solar system, and beyond. As a Vanier Scholar, his research is supported by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada. Oman-Reagan earned his B.A. and M.A. in four-field anthropology from Hunter College, City University of New York.
